I think that the Assignment has gone well. We decided that Darcy would do Java-script and I would do CSS and HTML. We both created our own parts of the assignment. Once I had finished CSS and Html, Darcy wasn't happy with my indenting and some of may margin settings. Darcy then edited the html and CSS. I think overall Darcy did a more work than I did. I didn't make many uploads to Github but when I did make a change it was normally large. I think that the usability of our website is good. I think that it is well designed and would be easy for people to use. I also think the website has good functionality. The website works to its full potential and calculates tax accurately. I think that the aesthetics of our website could have been better. I think this is mostly due to the design of our website. All together I think that we made a good website which meets the assessment task requirements. I think that Darcy did more work with me altogether. But I still did a large amount of work. I think that our indenting, coding and comments are all above the assignment standard.
